There's just one figure in the country Democrats like more Santa Claus - and he too speaks often of bearing gifts.

U.S. Senator Bernie Sanders of Vermont, a former Democrat-turned-independent who promised free healthcare, free college, and free preschool during his 2016 and 2020 campaigns for the presidency, is officially his party's favorite old white man from the North.

Results from a poll by JL Partners conducted exclusively for the Daily Mail revealed that Democrats viewed Bernie Sanders as the most favorable political figure, with the ornery senator coming out on top with a net favorability of 65 points.

Santa's net favorability was 59 points, lending Sanders a slight but noticeable advantage - especially around this time of year when Santa's approval usually spikes.

Former Vice President Kamala Harris was seen favorably by the highest number of Democrats, 78 percent, but her higher unfavorable rating dropped her below Sanders to a net of 62 points.

JL Partners poll sampled 383 likely Democratic primary voters for the presidential primaries of 2028 between the 17th and 19th of December. The margin of error was 5 percent.

Among other Democrats, New York Congresswoman Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez led the pack with a net favorability of +46, followed by New Jersey Senator Cory Booker at +41, Minnesota Governor Tim Walz at +40, and California Governor Gavin Newsom at +37.

Further down the list, Illinois Governor JB Pritzker registered +23, former Texas Congressman Beto O'Rourke came in at +20, and Maryland Governor Wes Moore brought up the rear at +14.
