Data Sources & Methodology

Data points featured in this tracker represent trailing 7-day simple moving averages of daily surveys. Bar chart values correspond to the average value from the latest indicated date; leaders in that chart are sorted by total approval shares.

All data was collected through Morning Consult's proprietary survey research capabilities. All interviews are conducted online. Data is weighted to approximate representative samples of adults in each country. Weighting parameters and target populations vary by country.

Consult our Global Political Intelligence Methodology Primer for additional details on sampling and data collection procedures, weighting and representativeness, margins of error, and question wording.
